A blank sheet of graph paper with a grid pattern. The grid consists of small squares formed by thin black lines. There are three thicker vertical lines dividing the page into four columns. The first column is narrow, the second is wide, the third is narrow, and the fourth is wide. There are also two horizontal lines near the top and bottom edges, creating margins. The paper is otherwise empty of any markings or text.

A blank sheet of graph paper with a grid pattern. The grid consists of small squares formed by thin black lines. There are two thicker vertical lines running down the page, dividing it into three columns. There are also two thicker horizontal lines running across the page, dividing it into four rows. These thicker lines intersect at four points, creating four rectangular sections. The top-left section is the largest, while the other three sections are smaller and roughly equal in size. The entire sheet is covered by the grid pattern, except for the areas defined by the thicker lines.
